INTRODUCTION

A TRUE STREET ADDRESS

Welcome to The Chiltern Collection, Cbus Property's collection of 11 architecturally designed three- and four-bedroom Torrens title terraces that combines the richness of Randwick's equestrian heritage with the craftsmanship and quality of a home to be loved for a lifetime.

With natural terracotta and white brick facades and a carved-out entry creating a strong sense of place, these rare homes welcome the sun from every angle. Step inside and be enveloped in a flood of natural light, which streams down the stairs and from skylights punctuated throughout.

A delightful approach to design elevates your connection to nature, with generous front gardens and alfresco entertaining built into the landscape. Flexible spaces provide the perfect balance of togetherness and privacy, from the flow of open-plan living areas to private bedroom sanctuaries.

These exceptional family homes offer strong neighbourhood ties in a thriving community; an enviable new street address in the heart of Newmarket Randwick.

ICONIC AUSTRALIAN ARCHITECTURE

Neeson Murcutt + Neille is a multi-award-winning architectural firm recognised for design excellence and architecture that is at once engaging and memorable.

They have extensive experience designing bespoke homes and an innate understanding of human touch, scale and atmosphere. In every home they design, they look to bring a heightened experience of the elemental, from the front door welcome, to places to sit, eat, bathe, relax, entertain and sleep.

By shaping spaces around these fundamental human activities, every room becomes special. Their approach to designing

The Chiltern Collection was an exercise in playfulness; homes drenched in light and embedded in nature with a distinct sense of spatial dynamics.

“If you have a variety of spaces, from wide and generous to tall and narrow, it really adds to the richness of the feeling of being at home,” says architect, Rachel Neeson.

“We know all families are different so we’re sensitive to the nuance of that. We’re conscious of creating spaces where people can enjoy being together, as well as providing the sanctuary and privacy to be apart.”

“THERE IS SOMETHING
BEAUTIFUL ABOUT AN AREA
THAT HAS SUCH A RICH
EQUESTRIAN HISTORY.”

RACHEL NEESON – ARCHITECT

“When we started designing the project, there was something beautiful about an area that had such a rich equestrian history,” says Rachel. “The pattern in the brickwork is very much connected to that; the dressing of horses, the braiding of their manes, the patterns that you see on the jockey silks.

“The two-tone brickwork creates a strong sense of texture unique to this place and its heritage, reflected throughout the development. We also created walls to the front, which provide both a feeling of privacy at your front door and a visual sense of connected front gardens, enhancing the beauty and flow of the streetscape.”

“OUR INTENTION WAS TO CREATE FAMILY HOMES THAT WERE BOTH DELIGHTFUL AND PLAYFUL.”

STEPHEN NEILLE – ARCHITECT

“From the moment you step outside,
you are enveloped in a sunlit,
garden-filled place,” says architect,
Stephen Neille.

“It offers an opportunity to build a strong lifestyle to the northern end of your home with the garden;
a barbeque; a feeling of playfulness and fun. There’s a distinct sense of landscape, of privacy and of bathing in light.”

North-facing indoor-outdoor living

LIGHT AND BRIGHT FROM EVERY ANGLE

As soon as you walk through your front door, you can see the sky. From the sunshine that streams down the staircase from upper levels, to the corridor entry and expansive layouts, a playful approach to space has created a distinct sense of home.

To enjoy such generosity of width in a room, from the kitchen and living areas, flowing to the open deck within a garden is a rare luxury. Perfect solar orientation brings sunshine in winter and easy shade in summer for a beautiful aspect, all-year-round.

Natural timber flooring gives the open-plan kitchen, living and dining area a feeling of bright, fresh spaciousness. The kitchen features an architecturally designed timber veneer island bench, overhead cupboards with v-groove detailing and premium appliances.

“WE INTENTIONALLY
MADE THE BATHROOMS
FEEL GENEROUS; LIGHT, SPACIOUS ROOMS THAT SEEM LIKE PLACES ALL OF THEIR OWN.”

“The shower and bath are housed in such a way that there’s a sense of intimacy; of stepping in and immersing yourself,” says Stephen.
“It provides you with a sense of being in a room within a room.”

“TO ENJOY SUCH SIGNIFICANT
IS A RARE LUXURY.”

STEPHEN NEILLE – ARCHITECT

From the bright light of day to the pink hue of sunset falling across the walls, wake up in a home that reflects the beauty of its surroundings. Living areas and bedrooms with sunny north-facing aspects open up to nature-rich spaces, creating a calming sense of a holiday at home. With distant views and the gentle breeze, these private sanctuaries are the perfect place to begin and end every day.
